Positive attitude nets Cates honors at San Miguel Fire

by Sheila B. Jurist

Theresa Cates has been selected as San Miguel Fire Department Employee of the Year. Cates, a fire specialist, is certified as an emergency medical technician.

Cates was looking for a change in her career, wanting to find more time to be with her daughter. A friend suggested the fire department.

After a training period and some time in the San Miguel Reserve Academy and Reserve Fire Department, Cates moved on to a full-time job with the San Miguel in 1990.

This was a big change from being a legal secretary.

"I would have not been able to pursue my career as a fire fighter were it not for the support of my parents early on," Cates said. "However, with the unusual work schedule we have (24 hours on the job, 24 hours off), it would be difficult to continue without the ongoing support of my husband. When I'm working, he gets to assume the role of Mr. Mom."

Cates said she always felt that she was put on earth to do more than sit behind a desk. She finds the fire service a very positive and challenging profession.

"I have always found it very rewarding helping others, and what greater way to help than when one has an emergency medical or fire-related need," she said. "When you truly love your job and enjoy the people you work with, it's easy to do more to help out."

Teresa Cates is presented her award by San Miguel Fire Chief Kevin Eggleston.

County gets sweet resource center lease

by Joe Naiman

Sports teams seeking new leases or facilities from government agencies may have reached their peak, but the county of San Diego got itself a sweetheart deal on its lease negotiation for the Family Resource Center in Lemon Grove.

The Family Resource Center provides services in support of the Food Stamp, CalWorks and Medi-Cal programs as well as Greater Avenues for Independence (GAIN) programs.

The Board of Supervisors approved a new lease May 19 which not only included a significant rate reduction, but also lessor-financed remodeling.

The lease on 40,000 square-feet of office space at 7065 Broadway commenced in 1990 at $101,535 a month, or $2.54 a square foot.

The 10-year lease was to have expired in April 2000, with two five-year options. At the time the lease was signed, the county planned to use the facility to support the Income Maintenance and GAIN. A change in function resulted in the site serving as the Family Resource Center.

The county had been working with John Burnham and Company to renegotiate the lease or to relocate the facility, but the property was foreclosed upon and acquired

Top teacher passed up court for kids

by Lora Clark

She thought she wanted to be a lawyer, but a part-time job with the La Mesa-Spring Valley School District inspired Ronda Royal to pursue teaching.

Royal, a product of Lemon Grove schools, was recently named the district's 1997-98 Teacher of the Year.

Royal's aim is to help her fourth-graders at Fletcher Hills Elementary School become responsible, well-rounded students who can think for themselves, have an insatiable desire to learn and know they can succeed.

"Ronda will do just about anything to help a child be successful," said Principal Bill Yakubik. "If that means she works on a weekend, stays late or comes in early, she will do it. She's as good a teacher as any child would ever want."

Although it was only nine years ago that Royal became interested in teaching, it was many years earlier that she learned some invaluable lessons on the subject.

Her second-grade teacher, a Mrs. Slansky, showed her how someone can make a difference in a child's life. Royal learned that a person can be warm, loving and even humorous while she is teaching. Slansky also showed her that good teachers care for their students, enough to share their painful moments as well as celebrate their triumphs and successes.

"She was more than my teacher," Royal said. "She was my friend and being in her classroom when I was seven years old has helped me become the teacher I am today."

Royal was raised in Encanto and Lemon Grove, attending Encanto and Vista La Mesa elementary schools, Lemon Grove Jr. High and Helix High. She went to Grossmont College for two years and San Diego State University, where she intended to study pre-law.

Needing to defray college expenses, Royal got a job with the LMSV School District in 1984. For the next seven years, she was in charge of the district's afterschool program, an experience that proved to be a turning point in her career.

"I really enjoyed being with the kids," stated Royal. "I started thinking about how great it would be to have fun with them and impart knowledge, too!"

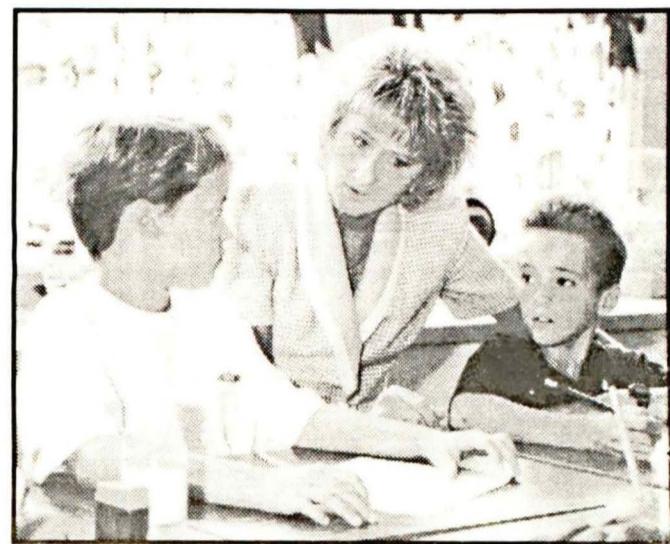

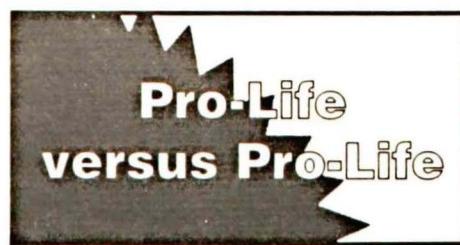

As this idea grew stronger, the goal of becoming a lawyer dimmed. She changed her major, got her teaching credential and went on to obtain a master's degree in curriculum and instruction.

All her efforts and endeavors can be put into a single, five-letter word: cares. She cares about her students, her colleagues and her community.

She willingly shares her classroom experiences with her associates. During the past four years, she has conducted at both district and county levels, several workshops for first-year and substitute teachers.

A recipient of more than 70 awards in public-speaking competitions, Royal knows how to hold the attention of her listeners. Her presentations are informative, interesting, and humorous.

Year-round Craft Projects, Communicating with Parents and Others, Classroom and Teacher Management to Help You Survive Your First Year, Teaching, and Preparing for a Substitute Teacher are a few of the many pamphlets and work books that Royal, with the welfare of her co-workers in mind, has written. These publications have been distributed throughout the district and county.

Her caring also extends into and beyond her community. Royal has coordinated schoolwide recycling programs, the preparation of gift baskets for nonprofit organizations, a used-book drive for the Sioux Indian children in South Dakota, craft sessions for the Alzheimer's Center and various food drives.

Her efforts have not gone unnoticed. She has been awarded numerous elementary education grants in the areas of science, music and art. In 1996, she received the Distinguished Master Teacher Award from National University.

Needless to say, her husband, Todd, and their two dogs don't see her around their house in Alpine for too many hours at a time, but the arrangement is working well for all concerned. Although she does take time out to see a Padres game now and then, she finds real enjoyment elsewhere.

"People often ask me what I do for fun," said Royal. "I teach, and almost everything I do relates to teaching. That's fun for me!"

Selected from the 800 teachers within the district, this outstanding educator will represent the LMSV School District at San Diego County's annual Salute to the Teacher to be held in the fall.

"She is, without a doubt, superb by any measure," stated Superintendent Warren Hogarth.

Lemon Twist

by Cheryl Cohen

Does anyone know where they ended up planting Lemon Grove? I was out of town that weekend, and upon my return, was still unable to find it in exactly the same spot. Maybe the whole thing was just an expensive sham. When you consider that they spent all that money, and all they seemed to get for it was a whole lotta dirt and some scrawny seedlings... Why didn't the city simply make a request that each driver using the Lemon Grove Avenue on/off ramp throw handfuls of native California wildflower seeds out of the car window? Irrigation, schmirrigation – that whole conversation could stop. But, on second thought, what would all we columnists write about?

And, speaking of freeways, what's the deal with the proposed Troy Street exit off of Highway 94, anyway? First, it's in, and then it's out – and now, perhaps, back in again. It's every bit as confusing as the House of Fabrics store in Lemon Grove Plaza. First it's in, then it's out, then it's in, and now, I see that they're having a "store closing" sale. C'mon, people, pick a location and go with it, for crying out loud!

You know, I can hardly wait to hear the presentation at the council meeting concerning a Miss Indian Lemon Grove. Hopefully, someone will also be there to represent the addition of a Miss Pakistani Lemon Grove. They've both got very explosive possibilities, you know.

Don't forget to get over to Dirk's Horseshoe Lounge at 7662 Broadway – they've started up their Sunday dart tournaments again (301 and cricket), and they're open to people of all nationalities, as long as you leave your nukes at home. There's a $5 entry fee, food and, always, plenty of laughs. Mention bartender Ivo's fake accent, and get an extra dirty look at no additional charge! Sign up every Sunday at 12:30 p.m.

But wait – there's more! On June 14, help celebrate the biggest party of the year: Dirk & Terry's 8th wedding party! No, not just an anniversary party – these lovebirds actually re-tie the knot each year, and celebrate it by having open bar from 3 p.m. - 6 p.m., live music by Super Traxx, and a pot luck; that's all followed by karaoke, whoever she is. Call 469-6344 for more information, or to hear someone tell you, "I don't know," and tell you to call back later.

Last Wednesday marked the second anniversary of Little Darlings Adult Cabaret as a totally nude dance club, and I stopped by (fully clothed) to congratulate their success. Funny, I didn't see any of you there, but then, I'm not accustomed to seeing you dancing in the buff, anyway. And, if you think these people are just outta control, you're wrong. They've got signs up in the bathrooms for the dancers explaining certain house rules – and most predominant, is the one which bans gum chewing. And, to think, some of you complain about the moral fiber of this club. Everyone's naked under their clothes, but I'll bet that some of those Lemonites who are against this club are gum-chewers.

B Words

Tis the season for the signs to bloom all over the city. I love the discreet yard signs placed, with permission, and they will assuredly be removed right after June 2. The others, mostly off-site elections appear magically on light poles and on every available fence along a thoroughfare. Hope they will be retrieved promptly as well.

Also we have the political ploy of incumbents claiming credit for oh so many things. Many were ongoing, planned, negotiated, etc. before the incumbent was elected the first time. It is a common practice, and thankfully the good works have been continued if not actually instigated by the claimant.

And, of course, we always have the naysayers who profess better solutions to problems that either are distorted or just do not exist. Change seems to be a magic word that implies improvement, but often has contrary results. So we must beware of glossy (fuzzy) approbations when choosing the spot to mark our ballots.

Things to ponder with the upcoming election:

The congressional, assembly, senatorial, and gubernatorial races often use the same ploys, and though seeming distant, are very important to our way of life in Lemon Grove. Even the county judgeships, and office holders affect us all in their performances. We found that out with the county pool investments that cost us some interest money. What the county does affects us in many of the rates we pay for services, trash, water, police, and sewage.

Tonight we will be given the opportunity to see and hear the candidates of our own local council and mayors races, it will be a face to face time to get answers. The candidate forum will take place from 7:30 - 9 p.m. at the Community Center, 3146 School Ln. I hope that you all will attend and ask the questions that you have been asking at the bakery shop and the barber shops.

We do, all of us have differing opinions about the present and future of Lemon Grove. They are all important, if not all valid. The more information that is put into the pot, the better the resultant stew will be for all concerned. Many of us have off the wall ideas that sound terrific at first blush. But then, when more facts come in to the picture we are thankful that it did not fly. Ideas and theorems are very often bothersome to the originator until they are finally proven correct or seriously flawed. Either way it is a relief. Progress is either made or disaster avoided. Take it from someone who has gone that route and seen his glorious ideas shot down, and also some go on to a positive fruition.

Lemon Grove is a family that has prospered because of its diversity and its cooperative and friendly nature. Our children are being raised by parents, not the village, and that is the way it should be...

Letters to the Editor

Take a look at some real issues

Kudos to the Review for the Letter to the Editor titled "Let the Negative Campaigning Begin" [April 2 issue]. I found this letter very interesting in that the call for decency and "not welcoming vicious negative campaigning" proceeded to do just that. I appreciated the Review's levity in calling it like it is.

If issues are to be discussed in this year's campaign, why bring up all of the old dirt that only served to obscure any discussion of real issues in the last election?

To be fair, I don't think any politician would "launch" a campaign by suing his city. Mr. Lake was defending a right. A legal right which cost him $400 - 10 times less than what our attorney charged the city. So what is the issue here? Is it the fact that Mr. Lake refused to reimburse the exorbitant fees charged by our city attorney or is it that our council insists on paying city staff 10 times more than they would make in the private sector?

Frankly, Mary Sessom and Tom Clabby have shown few signs of ever questioning city staff and that, to me, is a very big issue. At least Mr. Lake demonstrates a need to question. Call it grand standing if you like, but I think it's a difference of opinion and my experience is that any difference of opinion at City Hall is immediately labeled as: grandstanding, not factual, not worth considering, kooky - even threatening ... there's a list of unending excuses for not responding to the people.

So why did 20 citizens sign that letter perpetuating what they state they are opposed to? Who knows? Take a close look at who they support and consider their approach before voting.

Real issues to me are things like:

1. Traffic on Broadway
2. Overdevelopment in residential areas
3. Overpaying and overstaffing at city hall
4. Lack of recreational programs and park lands for our residents
5. Our unhealthy business sector (How many 99cents stores and nail salons do we really need? Not to mention that we must be the fast food capital of the world by now.)
6. The declining roads, sidewalks and general infrastructure of our neighborhoods
7. Flooding on Federal Boulevard
8. Money management and our future

There are lots of real issues to choose from in this election. I agree we need to avoid negative non-issues and get some real answers. Could we please not start by slamming the candidates and the public's intelligence with old news and get to the point of addressing what is important?

Letter-signers should have attended meetings

It is quite obvious to myself that the persons signing the "negative campaigning" letter to the editor, ["Let the Negative Campaigning Begin", April 2 issue] have not regularly attended city council meetings the past ten or even past four years. If you had attended the council meetings you would have a much better perspective as to what has and is occurring at these meetings.

I have the best attendance record by and far over any resident or councilmember currently on city council. I also have been attending meetings for a longer period of time than most residents that have lived in Lemon Grove over twenty-plus years. None, I repeat, none of the current councilmembers attended more than three months, that is a total of six city council meetings, prior to election or appointment to the Lemon Grove city council.

Ms. Mayor, Mary T. Sessom, has on many occasions flip-flopped on issues favoring residents (people that live and vote within the city of Lemon Grove).

Mr. Thomas Clabby is and has been very argumentative, condescending, bull-headed and arrogant at quite a number of meetings, sometimes over very trivial matters. He is an embarrassment to the city of Lemon Grove.

Ms. Mayor and Mr. Clabby believe it was and is perfectly alright to spend $10,000 of public money (your tax money) on Christmas parties for city employees, their significant others, Sheriffs Department, their significant others, Fire Department, their significant others. This is a gross misappropriation of public money.

How many of the current or past members of the planning commission can say they attended a minimum of one year's worth of planning commission meetings prior to their first appointment? This does not include the infamous General Plan Advisory Committee meetings. I dare say

by Steven Saint

When Joel Anderson went into Skyline Wesleyan Church Sunday, he noticed that someone from the California Pro Life Council had put ballot endorsements on the windshields of the cars in the parking lot.

Anderson could only smile — after all, that group has endorsed him for state Assembly.

Leaving was not so pleasant. Anderson came out to find that the Pro Life Council endorsements had been removed from the cars and another slate put in their place. This one, published by Southern Californians for Life, endorses Anderson's opponent in next week's primary, Mark Price.

Anderson said he expressed his displeasure to Sylvia Sullivan and Michael Kumeta, whom he saw sitting in a car loaded with the al-

U.S. Senate and governor on down to Republican central committees.

Both groups endorse Darrell Issa for Senate and Dan Lungren for governor. Both plug Gary Cass for the Grossmont Union High School District.

The most notable divergence is the 75th Assembly District race: the Pro Life Council endorses Anderson and Southern Californians for Life endorse Price.

Another significant split is the endorsements for Republican Central Committee in the 77th Assembly district. Southern Californians for Life endorse Sullivan and Michael Kumeta — the Pro Life Council does not.

Southern Californians for Life has been offering an alternative to the Pro Life Council slate since at least 1994. The La Mesa post office box for Southern Californians for Life is rented to Sullivan and Kumeta.

Sullivan is a long-time pro-life activist, associated with Operation Rescue in the early 1990s as well as the California Republican Assembly.

Kumeta is an attorney best known for his work with right-wing Christian activists. He has represented Jim Harnberger and David Kidder, and also assisted college trustees Rebecca Clark and Carolyn Griffin.

Until recently, Kumeta rented an apartment in a duplex owned by Clark.

"Southern Californians for Life" has no fictitious business name record with the county, nor any filings with county Registrar of Voters or the state Fair Political Practices Commission. Calls to the group's number, given on the endorsement flyer, were not returned.

Jenkins of the Pro Life Council said she doesn't know how Sullivan and Kumeta arrived at their endorsements, but she knows why her group did not endorse Mark Price.

"Mr. Price seemed to say different things to different people and groups at different times," Jenkins said. "It made us unsure of how solid he is on the issue. Mr. Anderson has been involved for a long time and, from what we could tell, he is solid."

Jenkins said Sullivan is solid on pro-life issues, but was not endorsed for Republican Central Committee for poor people skills.

Fitness for office is a close second to pro-life ideology in the Pro Life Council evaluations, Jenkins said.

"Sylvia has a reputation of not working well with people," Jenkins said. "When we make endorsements for something like central committee — where you have a large group of people who have to work together — that is one of the criteria."

Anderson, the best man at La Mesa City Councilman Barry Jantz' wedding, has lined up the support of Assemblymen Steve Baldwin, Howard Kaloogian, Bruce Thompson and Bill Morrow. He said he was never contacted by Sullivan regarding her endorsement and suspects that Price, a newcomer to East County politics, impressed them with money.

Anderson, a direct-mail con-committee." Anderson requested a written memo regarding for what the money would spent, concerned about reports that Sprague had spent CRA funds on his personal rent.

"I wasn't opposed to making the donation, but I wanted to make sure it would be spent on CRA," Anderson said. "Apparently, Mark Price gave the money. Ever since then, what Mark Price says is gold and whatever I say is wrong."

Price could not be reached for comment. Campaign consultant Geoff Patnoe said Price is out of state. It is clear, however, that Price gained the support of Sullivan's wing of the right early on.

While the list of supporters for his campaign kick-off did not include Sullivan, Kumeta, Sprague or Beverly Clark, mother of Rebecca Clark, it did include the late Herman Snodgrass and Barbara Mau, Beverly Clark's siblings.

Clark and Mau own a house that backs on El Cajon Blvd., which is used by pro-life activists and for Sullivan's U & I Business Services.

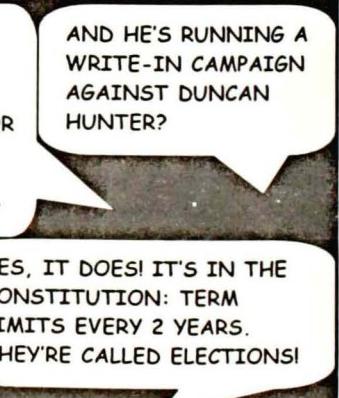

Regardless of who endorses who, this Sunday will be a big day for distributing political material to windshields in church parking lots. With a little luck, the fighting will stay on paper.

Watercolorist demonstrates at art association meeting

Foothills Art Association will be holding their monthly meeting at 7 p.m. June 4 at the Ben Polak Fine Arts Theater, 8053 University Ave. in La Mesa. Refreshments will be served before the meeting beginning at 7 p.m.

Watercolorist Brian Donn will demonstrate at the meeting. Donn is widely known for his watercolor portraits of Marilyn Monroe and his many commissioned portraits for private individuals. He has won numerous awards for his work and many of his pieces hang in private collections. Donn combines his extended knowledge of chemistry and his love for art to produce vivid life-like images. He was recently approached by Rockport Publishers to submit slides for an upcoming "Best of Watercolor" book, for which they selected his watercolor painting of loquat fruit. Donn has taught adult education classes throughout East County and is presently teaching privately.

Dernbach concentrates on landscapes and marine studies in watercolor. Her works are in numerous collections in Canada, Hawaii, Germany and many areas throughout the United States.

Derbach's interest in art began when she was a youngster. One of her first accomplishments came in junior high school when she was asked to decorate a window on the front of the school for the Christmas season. She began art training in high school. After high school, she attended Long Beach College and after college she married and started her family. When her children were in their teens, she enrolled in oil painting classes and has since studied with a number of instructors.

THE GAS STOP

"Old fashion, and proud of it!" is the motto of Gas Stop, a service station in the old fashion sense located in Lemon Grove and El Cajon for over 30 years.

Bob Dees, Gas Stop owner, prides himself on providing gas and other services to his customers with two attendants always on duty to pump gas if desired and check the water and oil ... just like in the old days. In addition to the friendly, free service, you can always get free radiator water and air for your tires at Gas Stop.

If you need propane bottles filled ... Gas Stop is the place for you. Again the attendants are ready to assist you. Also RV owners will be happy to know that there is a waste water dump located at the Lemon Grove location.

As part of the community for over 30 years in both locations, Gas Stop is actively involved in community events, and each week has a drawing at the Mesa Valley Grove Senior Center in Lemon Grove and at the Salvation Army Senior Center in El Cajon. Each week there is a drawing for 10 free lunches at each center sponsored by Gas Stop.

Stop by either location from 6 a.m. to 9 p.m., Monday through Saturday and from 7 a.m. to 9 p.m. Sundays. You will find the gas prices very reasonable and competitive and you can even have your gas pumped for you if you wish... just like the old fashion service stations used to do.
